- 1. When courts are scheduled with priority to a given sport or open play and are not in use to capacity, every effort should be made to accommodate as many users as possible using only the space required for each activity. Sharing of resources is encouraged. Any nonscheduled activity /sport may be played using idle space but must give deference to players of the scheduled sport within 15 minutes of reaching capacity for the scheduled court. For example, if basketball is only being played on a single court during scheduled basketball time, a pickleball game can be played on the other court until such time that basketball players arrive to use the second court or vice versa. The courtesy to finish a game or otherwise wrap up should be given but not to exceed 15 minutes.
- 2. When not scheduled for a specific use or sport, the courts are assumed open for general play on a first come first served basis. First come first served is defined as starting play for a typical use of the court for its intended purpose. Examples would include, but not be limited to;: basketball, pickleball, or at night other sports requiring lights. Every effort should be made to accommodate as many as possible by using only the space required for their activity. Sharing of resources is encouraged and only active play can be considered as establishing "first come", specifically, no saving of courts that doesn't include active play for that activity. You can't sit in a chair and save a court. If after trying to accommodate or share resources, a conflict exists, then the party who started to play first needs to give up their space to the requesting group within an hour of being asked.
